Amendment Includes Provisions Against Property Searches, Seizure, Wire-Tapping Without Warrants

Equal Rights

Measure Also Insures Full Civil Protection, Rights for All Citizens of State

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 8 (AP)—New York's voters approved by a majority of 219,239 the so-called "Omnibus" amendment to the state constitution which, among numerous other provisions, outlaws property searches and seizure and wire-tapping without legal warrants.

The official vote, announced yesterday by the State Board of Canvassers, was 1,521,036 for and 1,301,797 against.

Ballotted upon November 8 as amendment number one, the proposal included 49 of the 57 revisions to the constitution which the State Constitutional Convention adopted last summer. Besides the "search and seizure" provision it carried measures intended to:

Insure equal protection of laws and civil rights regardless of race, creed or color.

Establish a permanent registration system whereby a registered voter becomes eligible to vote at all subsequent elections.

Require removal of public officers who refuse to waive immunity and testify before a grand jury concerning their official conduct.

Permit the legislature to extend free bus transportation to parochial as well as public school children.

Prohibit taxation of undistributed profits, authorize taxing salaries of state officers and employees and reducing the maximum period for contracting a state debt from 50 to 40 years.

The "catch-all" amendment was one of six approved by the electorate, which turned down three. Official figures on those defeated were deferred.

Others approved and the vote: Amendment No. 3—Reducing the railroad's share of grade crossing elimination costs from 50 per cent to not more than 15 per cent. For, 1,561,846; against, 895,382.

Amendment No. 4—Authorizing a state debt up to $300,000,000 from which loans would be made for: "the construction, improvement and low-cost housing and permitting them to borrow two per cent over their debt-limit for that purpose. For, 1,686,056; against, 936,279.

Amendment No. 6—Stipulating labor's right to bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing; providing for minimum wages, maximum hours and the prevailing wage rate for employees on public works projects. For, 1,369,863; against, 840,770.

Amendment No. 8—Declaring social welfare a concern of the state and empowering the legislature to provide protection through insurance or otherwise "against the hazards of unemployment, sickness and old age," including provision for a state system of health insurance. For, 1,902,075; against, 943,296.

Amendment No. 9—Permitting New York city to borrow $315,000,000 beyond its debt limit to purchase and unify privately-owned transit lines. For, 1,407,056; against, 935,744.

Socialists Lose State Ballot

Party Fails to Poll 50,000 Votes in November

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 8 (AP)—New York's Socialist Party lost its place on the ballot today in the wake of an official state canvass that gave Norman Thomas, its candidate for governor, 24,890 votes in the November election.

Under the election law, state election bureau attaches said, the party must poll 50,000 votes for governor to retain its ballot position.

Failure of the Socialists to muster the necessary votes left three parties officially listed—Republican, Democrat and American Labor.

Meantime, the Republican Party won number one position on the ballot by virtue of the vote for Thomas E. Dewey, its gubernatorial candidate. He polled 2,302,505 strictly Republican votes against Governor Lehman's 1,971,307 Democratic ballots, the latter winning with the aid of an additional 419,979 votes given him by the American Labor Party.

City Bids in 283 Properties at Tax Sale Held at Hall

City Treasurer Says Amount of Unpaid Taxes Totals $50,000.00 This Year; Redemption Period

The city of Kingston was forced to bid in 283 pieces of property on which the taxes had not been paid at the annual tax sale held in the city hall on Wednesday by City Treasurer Lester C. Elmendorf. A total of 305 properties were offered for sale of which number 22 were bid in by those attending the sale.

In 1937 at the tax sale the city was forced to bid in 287 properties on which no bid was offered while 30 properties were purchased by those attending the sale. The total number of properties offered for sale that year was 317.

At the city treasurer's office in the city hall it was stated that the amount of unpaid taxes for 1937 was approximately $50,000. Owners of properties sold Wednesday have two years in which to redeem them.

Mysterious Death Probed

Janesville, Wis., Dec. 8 (AP)—Coroner E. J. Overton conducted an investigation into "several angles" of a mysterious murder-suitcase in the hope, he said, he might be able to announce sometime today the motive that led to the fatal shooting of a 15-year-old high school girl and a 25-year-old farm hand. Searches late yesterday found the bullet-punctured bodies of Mary Cunningham and Curtis Hansen in the front seat of an automobile parked in a wood near here.

Prince Resigns

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—Prince Alexis Obolensky has resigned as president of the Russian Nobility Association because old guard members objected to his playing the role of a Soviet commissar in a Broadway musical comedy. The prince, a court figure in the days of the czar, said he had resigned rather than cause friction in the organization who "still have fresh wounds in their hearts against the Soviet government."

South Americans Are Taking Roosevelt's Solidarity Plan Seriously; Hull Holds Informal Talks

Lima, Peru, Dec. 8 (AP)—A proposal to ban European political propaganda, in line with the United States program of solidarity for the Americans, may come before the Pan-American conference which opens tomorrow, activity by the Argentina delegation indicated today.

The delegation, a conference informant said, agreed upon a tentative recommendation and was to put it in more direct wording today.

A series of informal conferences between Secretary Hull, chief of the United States delegation, and heads of the Latin American groups demonstrated that they were taking President Roosevelt's solidarity proposals with deep seriousness.

Some among the Latin American envoys believe that the conference could enact concrete measures against political and cultural invasion from Europe but it appeared that Secretary Hull himself was feeling his way gradually and cautiously.

Sounding Out Attitudes

By the series of informative talks begun last night shortly after his arrival, the secretary was said to be sounding out the attitude of other delegations before deciding to present any specific project for a united hemisphere.

American delegates hinted that Mr. Hull might refrain from offering any project to the conference unless he could get unanimous agreement before hand.

Some among the Latin American envoys believe that the conference could enact concrete measures against political and cultural invasion from Europe but it appeared that Secretary Hull himself was feeling his way gradually and cautiously.

It was inspired by increasing activity attributed to German and Italian groups, following plenary talks held by German residents of a number of American states to endorse the Nazi annexation of Austria last spring.

Secretary Hull also devoted time today to work on two speeches—one for the radio to-night and one for the conference on Saturday, the first business session after the Friday opening ceremonies.

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Joseph Delaney said they had appeared as witnesses in the grand jury's attempt to pierce the past of Chaperau, described by government agents as a smooth operator and a former convict.

The witnesses, Delaney said, had received smuggled articles of clothing or jewelry from Chaperau. They were brought before the grand jury secretly in an attempt to shield them from publicity.

Delaney said he felt that none of the stars knew the articles were smuggled and wanted to give them an opportunity to explain how they came to be in their possession.

"He" can be prosecuted under the law," he said, "but we do not wish to do that if proper explanations are given."

In a statement explaining his connection with the case, Hitz, president of the National Hotel Management Company, said a Parisian merchant had advised him he was to receive a novelty key watch as a present and that Chaperau had delivered it. Delaney said he was "perfectly satisfied" with the explanation.

Chaperau is accused by the government of using diplomatic immunity to bring in the smuggled goods.

VFW Suggests New Program to Oust Danger of 'Isms'

Van Antwerp Outlines Ideas Before Dies Committee at Capital; Anxious That U. S. Stay Neutral

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars suggested a legislative program today to eliminate "the danger from foreign 'isms'" in the United States.

Eugene I. Van Antwerp, commander-in-chief of the organization, outlined the program in testimony before the house committee investigating un-American activities.

He also said the organization is anxious for President Roosevelt and congress to adopt policies which would keep America out of war.

"An effective, mechanized, motorized national defense with adequate trained reserves and equipment and material of all kinds, is, we believe, of the first importance in America's preparation against unwanted war, as well as for any such war as might come upon us," Van Antwerp said.

"Preparation for war is one of the best guarantees against war, as well as against the loss of our American form of government."

Type of Proposal

Van Antwerp made these legislative proposals: Require all organizations with dues-paying members in more than one state which distributes literature in more than one state to file with the library in congress its constitution, statement of purposes, names of officers, financial statement and a summary of its activities during the preceding year.

Require filing with the library copies of newspapers, magazines, books and pamphlets issued by any corporation, association, society or other organized group.

300,000 Would Migrate

Government Learns Nearly That Number Are Awaiting Permission in Germany to Come to United States; Many Are Jewish

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—Government officials have received information that there are now nearly 300,000 persons awaiting permission to migrate to the United States from Germany.

They attribute the pressure to the new anti-Semitic laws in that country. Nearly 90 per cent of the German applicants for admission to the United States are reported to be Jews.

The flood of applications is the greatest since passage of the present immigration laws in 1923. Inasmuch as regulations permit only 27,370 Germans to enter annually, it would take 11 years to work through the present waiting list, provided all are accepted. The German quota will be filled this year for the first time since 1929.

The pressure has been so great on the four American consulates which grant immigration visas in Germany that they have had to call for reinforcements. Several new consular officials and clerks have been dispatched to Berlin, Hamburg, Stuttgart and Vienna.

A. M. Warren, chief of the visa division, left for Germany a week ago to inspect the consulates and check up on enforcement of rigid qualifications for those given visas.

After leaving Germany, Warren will proceed to Poland, Czechoslovakia and other nearby countries where a proportionate flood of visa applications are on file. Nearly 90,000 Poles are on the waiting list, while only about 6,000 annually can be given visas.

Scores of Italians Arrested in Tunisia as Result of Anti-French Demonstrations in Streets

Tokyo's Notice

Arita Tells U. S. and Great Britain Revision of 'Open Door' Necessary

(By The Associated Press)

Reports of Italian troop concentrations in northern Spain, within easy striking distance of the French frontier, caused concern in France today as Italians in Tunisia demonstrated in support of Fascist colonial claims on France.

France's worry over the Italian campaign also was aggravated by widespread belief that Germany was backing Rome's colonial aspirations.

President Lebrun summoned Premier Daladier unexpectedly for consultations. They held a long talk, presumably on the new French-German no-war declaration and the possibility of German support for Italy.

Scores of Italians were arrested in Tunisia. They began forming in processions in Tunis streets, chanting the Fascist marching song, "Giovinezza," after police had broken up anti-Italian demonstrations by French residents.

10,000 Troops in Spain

The reports from Spain, which lacked official confirmation, said Italian troop movements had begun November 22, and still were continuing. They said concentrations included motorized units and much artillery. About 10,000 troops were said to have been massed in Logrono, in northern Catalonia.

Domei (Japanese News Agency) reported in Tokyo that Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita had told the United States and British ambassadors that "it may be necessary to revise the principles of equal opportunity and the open door in China."

Arita, the Agency said, told the envoys in separate interviews that there need be no conflict between Japan and other powers over interests in China if others would "recognize realities in the Far East."

In Paris a German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, left for Berlin after signing a no-war declaration with France, the political writer, Ferdinand, wrote: "Germany conspires against the French empire at the very moment when she promises to respect her continental frontiers."

Thousands of French students fought police in anti-Italian demonstrations in Paris and President Albert Lebrun unexpectedly called Premier Daladier for consultation.

Daladier's associates said he had staked the life of his government on the national defense issue in drawing lines for today's new session of parliament. Labor protests against his decree laws for financial rehabilitation faded as an issue as a nation-wide strike wave ebbed.

Demonstrations against Italy's campaign for French territory continued in Tunisia, France's North African protectorate which has been the focal center of the strife. Officials, however, reported "everything quiet" on the border between Tunisia and Italian Libya.

Protests and Warnings

Rome newspapers coupled reports of an Italian protest against Tunis demonstrations with warnings that Italians there "would take measures of legitimate defense."

Japan's agitators for extended fishing rights in Siberian waters under control of Soviet Russia and the U. S. S. R.'s demand for payments in connection with the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway to Manchoukou in 1925 brought old troubles between Moscow and Tokyo again to the fore.

Nikolai Yezhov, a top leader in Russia, was "relieved at his own request" of the commissariat of internal affairs, which includes the feared political police, but remained commissar of water transport. He was succeeded by Lorenti Berya, former party secretary of the Russian state of Georgia.

Police Say Youth Confesses Killing Girl in California

Railway Clerk, Rodney Greig, Tells How He Uses Hunting Knife on Girl; to Seek Murder Indictment

LEONA VLUGHT

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 8 (AP)—Police reported today a young railway clerk confessed that "for no reason at all" he fatally stabbed Leona Vlught, 19, former University of California student, as they sat in his parked automobile in the Oakland Hills after a 2 a. m. "date."

The clerk, Rodney Greig, 21, of Berkeley, was being held on an open charge. Inspector C. R. Kunes said police expected to get a relative of the slain girl to sign a complaint today charging Greig with murder.

The case started out as a mystery yesterday when a mushroom hunter found the body of the pretty girl.

Inspectors Lucene Jewell and Tom Duffy said Greig told this story: He and Miss Vlught drove into the hills and parked at a spot known as "Lovers' Lane."

"Leona was feeling lull," Jewell quoted the clerk. "I picked up my hunting knife and pulled it out of the sheath and gave it to her and told her she didn't have nerve enough to use it. She handled it awhile, and made a few playful passes at me with it, and gave it back to me."

"Then, for no reason at all, I let her have it. I don't know why, but I let her have it."

"I stabbed her once, in the breast, and she just folded up. I wanted to make sure that she was out so I kicked her on the throat with the point of the knife three times—just touched her, easy, to see if she'd move."

"So I dragged her out of the car and drove away and left her there."

Well said officers traced Greig by tracks left by his automobile tires.

Flags Hauled Down

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—Flags of all nations, except the United States, were hauled down last night at the winter sports carnival in Madison Square Garden as a result of "walk out" protests against display of the German swastika. Garden officials said scores of patrons demanded their money back when they saw the Nazi symbol. The removal of the swastikas brought an immediate threat of withdrawal by the German contingent.

Cave-Dwellers to Celebrate First Christmas in Own Home

In Cave City each mound means smokestack of one. Notice the

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
AP Feature Service Writer

Denver—Christmas spirit has come to Cave City—and the 12 old men who live there plan a special celebration in the underground dwellings that for most of them are their first real homes since boyhood days.

Mayor Doe (the first name is John, he smilingly asserted) explained about the city, how it came to be founded, and why the celebration.

The "houses" are the underground passages of the old Argo smelter through which millions of dollars of gold passed when Colorado produced yellow metal from its grass roots.

Less than a year ago a rooming house dweller discovered one of the abandoned tunnels. It presented an opportunity to own his own place and he promptly cleared it out and moved in. Since then 11 other men have come to keep him company, each in his own abode.

First Cave City Christmas

Says the mayor: "It's just like being a property owner, only there ain't no taxes. After all, it's common instinct for a man to want a home of his own."

"That's why we're going to celebrate Christmas this year. We're saving out a little each week and we're going to have a turkey in the oven on Christmas Day. It's going to be a humdinger of a celebration. We may even hang up our socks."

"If we do, it'll be the first time any of us got a present for 40 years."

All the Cave City dwellers are single; most are life-long bachelors. Funds come mostly from WPA jobs, relief or old-age pensions. Finances don't worry them, for (the mayor talking):

"If one of us does a bit tough sewing it's sure to help him out. There ain't no bare cupboards in Cave City."

Could Utopia Be It?

"In fact, with no taxes, no rent and nearly all the free wood and coal a fellow needs, on nearby dumps, what more does Utopia offer?"

Another citizen—Richard Roe—adds: "People might say we are a bunch of derelicts. That ain't it at all. We got a pride in this place. We could pay our rent in a rooming house but a rooming house ain't home."

The Doe, Roe, Noe monikers also were explained:

"We don't like a string attached to us anywhere. But most of us had families with good names once. Families just as good as yours, mister. That's why we don't use those names now."

Citizen Roe relaxes, earphones attached, for a quiet evening at home.

Babson Speaks On Unemployment

The following address was delivered by Roger W. Babson at the Penn Athletic Club, Philadelphia, today:

President Roosevelt has done many good things. Any honest statistician must admit this. President Roosevelt, however, has done nothing to eliminate the causes for unemployment. About one-third of our 9,000,000 unemployed are idle for one or more of the following six reasons:

Women in industry, while men are refusing to take their places as workers in the home.

Labor unions which are forcing employers to install automatic machinery which temporarily throws more out of work.

Loss of foreign trade through high tariffs, excess labor costs, and "isolation" policies.

High school instruction which is creating the desire for an easy life without struggle or sacrifice. Foolish legislation attempting, artificially, to fix prices, wages and hours of work, based upon socialistic propaganda, which scares people from investing in new enterprises.

Constantly widening breach between the birth rate of the employing and wage-earning strata. The unemployment problem will never be solved until the employing strain increases its birth rate, while those dependent upon others employing them reduce their offspring.

Naturally, the cure for these six unfortunate factors will come slowly, although a return to normal business will absorb a large proportion of these first 3,000,000 unemployed.

Robbing the Future

A second third of these unemployed, namely, 3,000,000 more are idle because during the last 20 years we have adopted a "rob-the-future" policy for a former "raise-as-you-go" policy. For instance:

Our change of motive power from horses, which consumed oats and hay raised annually by labor, for gasoline obtained almost freely from the earth.

Our change of industrial power from bituminous coal, which was mined by labor and hauled by trains, for temporarily cheap fuel oil which flows in pipes.

Our change of heating from anthracite coal, which also gave employment to those taking care of furnaces, ashes, etc., for the care-free oil burner.

Our change from textiles of wool, cotton, and silk, the raising of which gave much employment, for rayon, cellulose, and other artificial fabrics made from trees that have been 150 years growing.

Our change of building construction whereby alloys, mined from the ground, take the place, in many ways, of older forms of construction.

Other temporary substitutions such as gasoline for sail power, tar for gravel, farm tractors for mules and forest products for leather.

What About Cures for Present Conditions?

The focal point here is the decline in the use of coal and the increase in the use of oil. The use of coal could be revised by putting a tax upon the pumping of oil, the cutting down of forests, the mining of certain metals and any needless destruction of other natural resources of limited supply. (We have coal enough for 1,000 years.) This tax should be sufficient to cover a large proportion of the relief expenditures.

I suggest this tax because otherwise present relief expenditures may continue to be necessary until the oil begins to give out; the forests become denuded; and the mines become too expensive to operate. If the internal combustion engine, the oil burner and similar inventions were like the power-loom—merely making labor more efficient—I would not suggest such a tax.

I do not now criticize the development of water-power even though it competes with coal. The labor displaced under legitimate technological improvements soon finds work in other industries. In the cases under discussion, however, the situation is very different. This tax should be put on because of the needless destruction—by one generation—of natural resources which have been a million years in accumulating and can never be replaced.

More Interesting Figures

If 20 per cent of the oil now being consumed was—by such a tax—saved for future generations, it would increase the price of the remaining 80 per cent to a figure where coal mines would again be active and farmers would raise alcohol as a part substitute for this 20 per cent withheld. This alone would immediately create a demand for 20,000,000 tons of coal or 3,250,000,000 gallons of alcohol.

This would give the coal industry a new lease on life and would be a boon to hard-pressed farmers. To make this alcohol would require 1,300,000,000 bushels of corn. At an average yield of 25 bushels to the acre, this would put 50,000,000 acres of farm land back into production. Of course, a few men would be displaced by the above taxation program; but the net result would be putting 3,000,000 to work and reducing our relief bill 33 1-3 per cent.

Need Rebirth of Character

To put the final 3,000,000 unemployed back to work requires a spiritual re-birth on the part of employers and wage-workers. By a spiritual re-birth, I mean the long-range thinking of the good of the country as a whole, rather than the temporary comfort and profit of us as individuals. Men do not work for bread alone and this applies to all classes, including employers, wage-workers, and investors. These people are now lacking faith in God and man. Only as their faith is revived with new industries be developed, new mines be built and this remaining 3,000,000 be put to work!

"HANDY" WAY TO ORDER BALLANTINE'S ALE & BEER

ACROSS THE TABLE in your favored restaurant, the short cut to fast service is simple—three fingers up, thumb and forefinger making the ring. It's the "handy" way to order Ballantine's Ale and Beer.

And it's rapidly becoming a "part of the language"—which isn't surprising when you consider that the 3 rings themselves have been known and respected for almost a century. Everybody knows what they stand for—PURITY, BODY, FLAVOR. On draught . . . in bottles (12 oz. and full quart) . . . in copper-colored cans (12 oz. and full quart). AMERICA'S FINEST SINCE 1840.

BOOM IN CITIZENSHIP

There is a rush for naturalization these days. Reports from many cities show applications coming in more rapidly than for years. Classes of instruction for immigrants are crowded and in some cases are three or four times as large as they were last fall. This is surprising when it is remembered that immigration has been virtually stopped during the last decade, and most of the applicants have been in the country for many years.

Why the sudden demand now for citizens' rights? Present circumstances are more compelling than usual. Unemployed immigrants must have at least their first papers to get WPA jobs. There are citizenship restrictions, too, for old age pensions, and state relief acts, and private employers sometimes discriminate against aliens.

Perhaps the biggest reason, though, why so many of our immigrants are now snug-gled up to Uncle Sam is the present state of the world, with special reference to some of the countries these people came from. A time has arrived when citizenship has more practical values than it ever had before. It is very important today to belong to some good country and be able to prove it. And of all the available countries in the world, America rates highest in its appeal to immigrants.

FUTURE OF RELIEF

Two points about relief were presented at the annual conference of the National Municipal League in Baltimore recently.

Carl P. Herbert, director of the St. Paul bureau of municipal research, said that "no matter how business improves, relief will continue to be the outstanding problem in this country."

Paul V. Bettlers, executive director of the United States conference of mayors, said that cities would continue to oppose turning the relief problem back to the state governments, because nearly every state legislature is controlled by rural delegates who do not understand the problems of urban centers.

Both these statements invite the thoughtful concern of all citizens. Why should the relief problem continue with and after recovery? Those who foresee this condition cite various reasons, especially unemployment with its complex causes. If they are right, it is time to face the situation and prepare to meet it by a long-range, efficient program instead of month-to-month emergency measures.

As for rural and urban legislators not understanding each other's problems, it looks as if more honest and complete publicity is required. It is a problem of education, fair play and team work.

NOT SPEAKING

With the American ambassador recalled from Berlin, and the German ambassador from Washington, both for an indefinite period, the two countries may be regarded technically as not speaking to each other. There is no complete break; essential diplomatic services are carried on as usual, through subordinates. But there is no fraternizing, no voluntary cooperation, no demonstration of good will.

Such a situation sometimes drifts into the more serious and troublesome stage of withdrawing all direct representation and each of the countries getting some third nation, as a mutual friend, to look after essential matters. Most of us hope that will not be necessary.

We have had no ambassador at Moscow, either, for several months. There is no such difficulty in this case as has developed between America and Germany, as a result of the Nazi persecutions, but there is an obvious coolness between the two capitals.

If another such situation develops, it probably will be with Japan.

INCORRECT TIME

Officials of the United States Navy Observatory at Washington are conscientious men. The annual report of the superintendent confesses errors made in the time-keeping task. They occurred last September. We can survive having our faith in various pet theories shaken, but can we bear learning that the naval observatory time was ever inaccurate?

We can! What is a large inaccuracy to a naval observer is inconsiderable to commuters, business men, housewives and schoolchildren. As explained to the inquiring reporter who asked for details, "the temperature control of the crystal oscillator failed to operate on three occasions during the latter part of 1937," and this caused "a large error of 0.452 second." However, the error was caught and corrected before the next hour call.

It is possible that a train might be missed by four hundred and fifty-two thousandths of a second, or that Johnny might be late to school by that fragment of time, but hardly because the naval observatory instruments failed. It may be doubted that even the three-minute-egger would know it if his egg were actually cooked that much over or under its three minutes.

American airplane manufacturers are said to be afraid of getting big orders, but some people in other lines would love to be scared that way.

We're nothing if not a foresighted people, and we seem already to have our 1940 campaign well under way.

A country will generally give up almost anything, including its life, for its real estate.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.
 BOIL IN OUTER CANAL OF EAR

A patient may feel a little pain or soreness in the ear which later becomes so severe that when he telephones his physician the latter has almost made up his mind that he will find a severe ear infection and that the very severe pain is likely due to the formation of pus in the mastoid—the spongy bone behind the ear.

He finds the patient in great pain but is relieved to find that the pain is not behind the ear and the mastoid is not painful when pressed. The pain is really in or in front of the ear and is increased when he moves the ear about.

What is usually the trouble when the pain is in front of ear and moving the ear increases the pain? These are symptoms of a furuncle or boil in the canal going in to the outer side of the drum of the ear—not in the ear proper at all. The pressure of the boil and the inflammation in this small round canal causes intense pain.

In speaking of these boils or furuncles in the outer ear canal, Dr. P. S. Wrigley, Manchester, The Practitioner, says that the majority of cases do not call for operation and a soothing and "waiting" or palliative treatment often gives the better result. The canal should be packed with half inch ribbon gauze moistened with some antiseptic preparation such as 2 per cent carbolic in glycerine and fomentation (warm and moist medicated liquids) over the whole ear give greater relief than dry heat in any form.

When the boil comes to a head and it can be seen to contain pus, opening should not be delayed. As opening a boil in this region is often very painful, Dr. Wrigley states that a general anesthetic should always be given.

Some physicians clean out the canal with equal parts of peroxide and warm water, dry the canal with absorbent cotton, and then insert a few drops of Kaith's dressing (1 part carbolic to 10 parts glycerine). If the boil is small and "ready," it is opened with a wooden toothpick that has been dipped in carbolic.

It is important to remember that when the pain is in and in front of the ear and is increased when ear is moved, the trouble is likely due to a boil in the canal.

Health Booklets

Eight helpful health booklets by Dr. Barton are available. They may be obtained by sending ten cents for each one desired, to cover cost of service and mailing, to The Bell Library, 217 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., mentioning the name of The Kingston Daily Freeman in your request. The booklets are: Eating Your Way to Health (No. 101); Why Worry About Your Heart? (No. 102); Neurosis (No. 103); The Common Cold (No. 104); Overweight and Underweight (No. 105); Allergy or Being Sensitive to Various Foods and Other Substances (No. 106); Scourge (gonorrhea and syphilis) (No. 107); and How Is Your Blood Pressure? (No. 108).

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Dec. 8, 1918.—Mrs. Marguerite Rowena Cool Williams, wife of Frank Williams, died in Washington, D. C.

Police Department started to take census of all those who had influenza during the epidemic in Kingston the past year.

Dec. 8, 1928.—Salvation Army kettles made appearance on the street.

Edwin O'Reilly of Pine Grove avenue, a student at Catholic College in Washington, D. C., elected president of Class of 1930 of the Patroloimen's Association of New York City, and other officers of the association, were guests of Kingston Patroloimen's Association at dinner at Stuyvesant Hotel.

Edwin C. Alward of Emerick street and Miss Leona Shurtler of Cedar street, married by the Rev. E. L. Witte of the Livingston Street Lutheran Church.

The Rev. Herbert Killindor resigned as pastor of Marlborough Methodist Church to accept call to the Hyde Park M. E. Church.

Lowest point recorded by The Freeman thermometer was 31 degrees.

Winnipeg, Man., (P.)—In spite of continued unemployment, there is a shortage of girls to work as domestics, and social service agencies here think they know why. They cite long hours and low wages, but especially loneliness, as the reason girls are turning to other employment. Four social service agencies have been working to provide recreation for domestics and to do what they can to regulate hours and wages.

Jacksonville, Fla., (P.)—Bender A. Cawthon, a Jacksonville resident, has an ancient gold-plated phonograph. Thomas A. Edison is said to have manufactured for the Shah of Persia 50 years ago.

The Shah sent a photograph order to Edison in the early days of the talking machine and through a misunderstanding two gold-plated deluxe type gramophones were made and sent to him instead of one. The Persian ruler promptly returned one.

Edison made a present of the returned machine to John H. Mackey, a friend and associate, who later settled in Jacksonville. Mackey died a year ago and Cawthon obtained the phonograph from his estate.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

The Characters
 Katherine Cornish, myself, visiting Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post.
 Elizabeth, Colonel Wright's daughter.
 Adam Drew, acting commanding officer.

Yesterday: Lou, Adam and I go to Elizabeth's.

Chapter 30

The Hidden Relative

ELIZABETH leaned over the railing and spoke from the upper hall.

"I'll be down in a minute."

Adam said, "Right! We'll wait in the colonel's den."

There was a cot bed covered by a Navajo blanket and piled with the kind of cushions that are intended for use. I curled up among them, and Adam, after a preliminary inspection of the seating arrangements, chose the swivel chair in front of the big mahogany desk, where he sat rather painfully erect. I knew that he had understated the effects of his fall on the polo field, but I also knew that he hated sympathy, so I did not offer mine.

"You still have the notebook?" he asked softly; and at my nod: "Don't let anyone see it."

I slid it under the cushions while he took from somewhere on his person the little bundle of notes I had made during the early questioning. A baffled look crept over his features as he studied them.

"You'll have to interpret, I'm afraid," I said.

"No, I don't want to put out the light."

"It ought to be nearly dawn. Sky's overcast. This has been the longest night..."

"Adam, what are we going to do?"

He shook his head wearily. "That notebook—no pinning impossible hopes to it. If you'll stay up..." Elizabeth's firm tread echoed on the stairs. She came into the room, a splendid, unshaken creature, the kind of woman who takes the years as they come, meeting trouble with matter-of-fact, unflinching courage.

"Thank you, Adam, for taking care of Katherine. There has been an ordeal for her. Her eyes, full of trust and affection, rested on mine. I wish I could have spared you the things Mrs. Ovington said. No one who knows you could believe them."

The memory of my own suspicions of Elizabeth plagued me. I could find nothing to say.

"Elizabeth," said Adam quietly, "a man has been killed."

Her cast its visible shadow over her face.

"Who?" she whispered.

"A sentry. He had information for me. You understand that I have to question everyone?"

She said, "Certainly." Her voice was steeper. Her eyes were compassionate, but the blow had flung her.

"I was with me—there is no possible suspicion of her."

She turned to me with spontaneous pleasure. "I'm glad, Adam. Charlie?"

"Charlie was in his room," said Adam evenly. "Now I want you to tell me—have you and Annie been together since you left us at the club?"

"Yes, all the time. And she intends to sleep in my room. She's very faithful."

"Then you were not out of each other's sight from the time you left us at the Service Club?"

He was so persistent, I decided, not because he distrusted her, but because of lingering pessimism. And it was unjustified.

"Yes," said Elizabeth, "except at the Carwells' of course."

No Psychologist

ADAM blinked and the color rose in his face.

"At the Carwells'?"

"Yes, Annie wanted to stop by and see if Mrs. Carwell needed anything. They're very old friends, you know. She didn't go to see Mr. Carwell's maid—said Mrs. Carwell had been given a sedative and was asleep. And Major Carwell was out—Bridget either couldn't or wouldn't say where. Annie stayed there quite a time arguing with her, and when she came out she seemed quite annoyed."

"And you?" Adam asked reluctantly.

"Oh, I didn't go in," said Elizabeth sadly. "I waited in the car."

When she had gone upstairs again Adam closed the door and turned to me with a ferocious scowl that sat oddly on his cherubic features.

"I waited in the car," he mimicked bitterly. "Why couldn't they have stayed together—just one sound alibi to break the chain—anything?"

He waved his arms as if a swarm of gnats were bothering him.

"Well, after all, she told you the truth, and she needn't have. Annie would lie for her—did she about the time of Anne's shooting. Elizabeth could have a chain of alibis for the claiming."

"She doesn't seem to feel the need of it," he said wryly. "Tell me, do you notice just a flavor of the royal family about her—there?"

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Dec. 7.—The annual concert of the Catskill Men's Glee Club will be given at the Dutch Reformed Church here January 30. This is a popular affair each winter season here and always well attended.

The Woodstock Family Bible Exposition will be open in the M. E. hall to the public Saturday from 2 to 6 and on Sunday from 8 to 10 p. m. In addition to about 75 historic Bibles there will be a number of samplers relating to Woodstock families.

In observation of Universal Bible Sunday there will be a union service in the Methodist Church Sunday, December 11, at 7:30.

The Rev. Miles L. Yates, chaplain of Bard College, will give the sermon.

The Sunday school of the Reformed Church, and the Christian Endeavor society are planning their annual Christmas party and king-can-do-no-wrong sort of thing?"

"Not exactly. I think it's conscious recitatives—the knowledge of being without blemish.... After all, Adam, can you imagine her murdering anyone?"

"I can see her meeting out just and righteous punishment—my imagination balks at murder. It couldn't be that with her. It would have to be an execution. I can even imagine her executing herself in defense of a principle."

He stopped, grinned sheepishly. "As if I knew anything about it," he said apologetically. "It's a rash man who sets himself up to interpret another person's mind. We're mysteries even to ourselves."

"But—but that's true about her." I said in a flash of conviction. "Only there's no such motive here."

"Of course not. And I'm no psychologist. We'll leave that sort of thing to Barney."

The notebook I reached a hand under the cushion for it, and Adam dropped down beside me on the cot. And it was at this inevitable moment that the door opened and Lou Ovington peeped in.

"She was still fully dressed. I had time to observe before she ducked out and shut the door with ostentatious haste."

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" she called with unnecessary volume. "I didn't mean to interrupt. I just came down for a book..."

Adam was staring at the closed door in blank surprise.

"You'll find Little Women in my room," I said clearly. "Take it—I've read it."

Her voice drifted away, still shrilling apologies, as if she had really interrupted something.

We exchanged bewildered glances then I began to giggle helplessly.

"What I'm doing to your reputation, Adam!"

He was blushing, as usual at the slightest excuse.

"A thoroughly nasty woman," he said stiffly, he rose, returned to the swivel chair. "Perhaps you'd better read it to me. Safer that way..." And he grinned reluctantly.

But What And How?

I OPENED the little brown notebook, flipped the pages and began to read where we had left off in Barney's rooms.

"Mrs. Flower—always telling about her heart palpitations, see chapter on neurasthenia. Many symptoms of mental unbalance here: 1. Inability to follow a subject consecutively or coherently.

2. Repeated use of wrong word—"ingenious" for "ingenuous." "Eminent" for "imminent." "Colonial" for "colossal." 3. Inability to see things as others see her. 5. Primitive defense of her child's most obvious faults and real pleasure in the fact that the brain resembles her."

"Odd that the child shows none of his father's superior mentalities. Query: Has physique—physical superiority—any relation to hereditary dominance? Flower is not sure."

"Mrs. Flower's father was a painter—renowned, but commercially unsuccessful. N. B. Genius often on the borderline of sanity. Has she any brothers or sisters? Can seldom get a straight answer from her. Is she intellectually evasive or merely rattlebrained?"

"I murmured, 'What a lot he missed!'"

His eyes were closed, his hands rather tense on the arms of the chair.

"Haven't I seen you smoke a pipe?" I demanded. "Where is it?" He opened his eyes, grinned at me.

"In the car."

"Then get it—you look too uncomfortable."

"It's a violent brute," he said lovingly. "Maybe Elizabeth wouldn't like it."

"Nonsense—I think her father smokes old rubber bands."

He went like a child nursing from school, returned to work. Never heard of Mary doing anything for her. Mary is she only homely?"

Adam took the pipe out of his mouth, cradled it in his hands.

"Do you notice something about this—this amateur analysis? The same theme—as if he were on the trail of something?"

"You mean—the hidden relative?"

The minute I had phrased it my mind made the connection. Adam had said the murderer was someone a little too anxious to keep the skeleton in the family closet.

"Ethel Curtis!" I breathed. "He must have found out something. But what, and how? He said that by the way he speculates about them all."

Adam did not reply. His eyes were bright with furious thought, and he was smoking with short, rapid puffs, like a steam engine working at top speed.

Santa Claus Explains

"I THOUGHT," continued Santa Claus, while all the Puddle Muddlers listened attentively, "that I could drive one sleigh and you, Willy Nilly, might drive one."

"Of course I have plans to take me to the parts of the country where there is no snow. I've a new way known how to get around! After all it is the business of Santa Claus to know how to get everywhere at Christmas time."

"With the extra sleigh, however, we could get just that much more done in shorter time. I attached an extra sleigh to the one in which I rode down here, and there are extra reindeer waiting for us."

"Now the idea is for you, Willy Nilly, to take the extra sleigh and drive it up to my home North and gather all the toys that are ready. I have also built an extra sleigh there and in it, I'll find the finished presents. My dog, Boy of the North, or Great Boy, as I also call him, will be there to give you a barking greeting."

"Oh, how is your dog?" asked Rip, wagging his tail. "I've been waiting to ask you."

"Fine, fine, he's fine," beamed Santa Claus. "Then," he continued, "when I get back here from my trip I'll have reindeer and a sleigh waiting for me, as I'm sure I'll be back before you get up North and down again."

"We'll probably pass each other the way express trains do. And on each one of your trips you'll find more finished toys. There are a great many that simply need the finishing touches."

"I'm ready to start at once!" exclaimed Willy Nilly.

Tomorrow—"They Want Riders."

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court scooped the monopoly investigators and tossed a job into the hands of Congress before the inquiry into big business could get started.

Just as the joint congressional-departmental inquiry into patent monopolies and other monopolies was to begin, the court upheld the right of a patent owner to limit the use of his patented articles even after selling them.

Specifically the decision applied to patented vacuum tube amplifiers used in radio receiving sets and talking picture machines. The court held that Western Electric company, owner of the patents, could license a company to sell tubes only for use in home set radio stations. It would be illegal to sell the tubes to somebody who wanted to make a talking picture machine.

most in the monopoly investigation conducted jointly by congress and several departments, including the Department of Justice, including Leon Henderson and Isadore Lubin from New Deal ranks, have outlined the theme song, the big inquiry expects to find out as a first effort what effect automobile patents have had in encouraging or discouraging monopoly in that industry. Committee advisors expect the industry to come through the examination with something near an "A" grade.

But there are two other investigations in operation. One is the dull and dragging inquiry by the Federal Communications Commission to determine whether the big radio chains have a monopoly on broadcasting.

GENERAL Talking Pictures Corporation bought some of the tubes and in defiance of the license used them in talking picture machines. Now, under the decision, the company is liable to triple damages. Not only did the company protest at the decision but the Department of Justice argued that such a ruling would "put the administration of the anti-trust acts in serious jeopardy."

It was a split decision. Justices Black and Brand holding that when the company sold radio tubes, the buyer could use them in any manner he chose. To give the patent owner the right to restrict use of his patents, the two justices argued, would be to broaden the patent privilege out of all reason.

Patent monopolies have been a favorite subject for congressional inquiries or threats of inquiries for years and now comes along a case right down the alley of the anti-monopolists, with the Department of Justice backing up a demand for a restriction of patent monopoly rights.

Probation Officer Files Report With Supervisors

The annual report of Chief Probation Officer Robert J. Service, submitted to County Judge Frederick G. Traver and filed with the board of supervisors covering the past year, shows through the statistical report and the written report the value of this work which is carried on in conjunction with the Children's Court and county court. Lack of work on the part of many youths is responsible for much of the trouble which they find themselves, according to the report of Mr. Service and much of the work of the probation officer is done in an attempt to solve these problems by proper guidance of those who have become involved in difficulty with the law and in attempting to find a place for the youths so that they may become useful citizens.

Mr. Service's very comprehensive report points out many of the problems with which the youths of today are faced and shows what is being done through probation in Ulster county to solve the problem. His report follows:

Report of work done in probation for the Children's and County Courts of Ulster county, New York, from December 1, 1937, to December 1, 1938.

To the judge of the County and Children's Courts, Ulster county, New York, Honorable Frederick G. Traver, Your Honor:

You will find appended a brief statistical report of the official cases which have been on probation from the County and Children's Courts of this county for the past year. In addition to these cases, investigations were made for probation departments of persons who were under investigation by their departments and who had at some time had contact with this county, or cases of residents of this county who were in difficulty with other courts or concerning probationers from other courts who were temporarily residing in this county. More than two-thirds of the work of this department does not lend itself to official statistics.

The growing tendency to compel all youth to remain in school for a longer period deserves more careful consideration. There is such a thing in education as a point of saturation beyond which nothing more can profitably be absorbed. We have an educational system at present well established to meet the needs of academically minded students, and much has been accomplished or has been planned that is well suited to commercial and industrial vocations, but there is still a large number of young people who need nothing more than honest, profitable labor. When all is said and done, the fact remains that the foundation of all education should be the development of every individual of a striving for a self-supporting, decent citizenship. In our courts we are interested in education because of its failure to mould the lives of so many along socially correct lines. The educators are doing their best as a general thing to meet the situation, but they cannot educate those who have not sufficient native intelligence to begin with. Honest, profitable labor is the crying need of these individuals and the tendency is to deprive them of it for a still longer period. In school, this group has little ability to get along. They lose interest and systematically practice getting through with the least possible effort, thereby learning to loaf. An expansion of the vocational courses in school will help to solve the problem, but still there is a goodly number who cannot be profitably reached by educational institutions, and compelling them to remain in school after they have absorbed all the school has to offer that is within their ability to comprehend, only aggravates the situation and is a tremendous burden, not only on the educational system, but on the taxpayers who support it.

There is little unrest evident among the youth whose educational needs are being met, and this has always been true, but among those who have reached their limit of attainment we have an increase of adolescent lawlessness. Their educational meat is work—a man's job—and legislators are being urged to still further deprive them of the right to secure their education through honest labor.

Much of the work of your probation officer consists in consultations with parents, teachers, and young people who are face to face with these problems and are endeavoring to find a solution. They come for educational and social guidance. Each case has its own particular set of circumstances and its own individual treatment. If they are allowed to drift unaided they make easy prey for the propagandist and the malcontent, and lawlessness is the next step. This work of consultation is one of guidance and crime prevention. Guidance is the most valuable element of education. It is gratifying to note the number of teachers in and about Kingston who are taking a New York University course in educational guidance every week. It is teachers of this type who are best helping the schools meet the needs of their students to best advantage.

All organized youth movements are doing a fine piece of work in delinquency prevention in Ulster county by providing supervised youth activities for leisure time, and there is much more still to be done, especially among those who cannot afford the price necessary to get along in some of them. There is no better guidance work done anywhere than that of the 4-H Clubs, which furnish activities of the highest educational and citizenship value. Urban areas need more of the direct vocational touch in their organization. Young people need more stress placed upon the dignity of and respect for labor.

This has been the most difficult year we have so far experienced in collecting money from adult probationers for family support and restitution, because of labor conditions. The past few weeks have, however, shown some improvement.

This work has many discouraging moments, but we have been long enough on the job to observe sufficient successful results to make the effort seem worth while. We see many in places of trust, leading lives of good, respected citizens, who were some years back probationers on our records as a result of some mistake they had made. One case that was well known five years ago and who now holds a position of trust in a neighboring state has written a letter to this office which states in part:

"I would like very much to have this letter forwarded to the district attorney and the judge, who were so kind to me when I needed a friend, in the hopes that it may help some other young man, whom they have before them, and help them to decide on probation, because I realize now what a hard job and responsibility it is for a district attorney and judge to let a felon go out in society, knowing that there is always a reflection goes back on those two people for helping."

"So I say in closing my last report, thanks many times for your kindness during these past five years, and to those two fine men who gave me a chance when I needed one. I can't really express my appreciation in one word, but believe me, I'll be forever grateful and my wishes for you all are always the best."

I want to express my appreciation for the fine cooperation extended to this office by the Kingston city police, the sheriff of Ulster county, and his staff, and the police in this territory. Without probation would be very much hampered. The nineteen individuals in private life who have acted as Big Brothers to 19 of our children on probation deserve the highest possible commendation for their cooperation and inspiration. It is the brotherly interest taken by such individuals that makes rehabilitation possible in many of our cases. Individual members of our service clubs, Rotary and Kiwanis, as well as individuals in the villages of the county, have made up this group. The extreme care used by the court and the district attorney in selecting the cases for probation is in the main responsible for any success we may have had with adults, and I am grateful for the support of the court in speedily checking the few adults who have failed to make good the terms of their probation. Careful selection of cases in the first place and understanding treatment through the period of probation, accompanied by speedy discipline in case of failure, as practiced by this court, tends toward success in probation.

Respectfully submitted,
ROBERT J. SERVICE,
Probation Officer, County and Children's Courts, Ulster County, New York.

Press Company Presses Increase

With business recovery making strides, all signs point to exceptionally busy holiday season for local manufacturers, retailers and the public generally, in the opinion of W. B. Ingalsbe, agent, Railway Express Agency.

Mr. Ingalsbe bases his optimism on advice received from his company, instructing him to be prepared for the handling of an unusual volume of gift shipments expected this year and to arrange for prompt deliveries, even on Christmas Day.

"We are doing all others in urging the public to shop early and ship early," said Mr. Ingalsbe. "Yet habits are hard to change. The way our retail districts and the stores therein are jammed with customers until Christmas Eve indicates that some people still will wait until the last moment before completing their holiday buying. But speed of express shipping has noticeably increased in recent years and that helps to make up for tardiness in forwarding gift shipments to go out of town. For latecomers, of course, there is available the latest achievement of high-speed shipping—air express—which can accomplish delivery of Christmas packages as far as 2,500 miles. Holiday shipments will be picked up or delivered by Railway Express at any address within the corporate area of this city. The local express office has received a supply of attractive holiday package address stickers for free distribution to the public.

Faces Death

Dorothy Lewis, eight-year-old New York city girl, plays happily at her home, knowing nothing of the seriousness of a malignant growth on her thigh bone, which may mean the loss of her leg or even death. Her father, William Lewis, must decide, physicians say, whether to permit amputation of her right leg, giving her a meagre chance to live, or refuse, with death in one year the prospect.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?

Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sunk-beat, and you just don't know why? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble? What have you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any farther. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk" and "bulk" means a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination. If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, Vitamin B. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

N. Y. Tests Prove Women Can Lose FAT

Ask Your Doctor If It Isn't Good Way. Read EVERY WORD

NEW YORK, N. Y. A test conducted by a prominent N. Y. physician and a nationally known newspaper woman (see page 1) has proven that it is possible to lose fat, if you'll only STICK TO IT and give it a fair trial.

In 40 days 15 women lost a total of 216 lbs. "EVERY" woman lost fat—the average loss per woman being 14 1/2 lbs. The women first of all ate sensibly. And for proper functioning they took a little daily dose of Kruschen Salts. You have the slightest doubt about this Plan just ask your own doctor about its safety and merit.

And this is important to know: Kruschen is not just one salt as some people may ignorantly believe. Rather, it's a blend of 6 active mineral salts (see page 1) which, when dissolved in water, make a healthful mineral drink similar to the waters of famous European Spas where wealthy big game hunters come for years.

Here's the Kruschen Plan: Just take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in hot water every morning for better functioning. Go light on fatty foods and sweets—eat plentifully of lean meats, fruits, fruits and green vegetables. Plan to do this faithfully for 25 days and see if you don't lose fat and feel healthier and younger. A few cents buys a few cents and makes 5 gallons of a most highly efficient mineral health water. At Franklin Pharmacy and drugstore, every where.

We have enjoyed a very successful year both socially and financially under the leadership of Mrs. Charles O'Reilly and her efficient staff of officers. The first accomplishment of the auxiliary was the Christmas decorating of the hospital.

Beautiful to the eye of the patient, the hospital personnel and visitors during the holiday season. It brought the true Christmas spirit to the sick through the medium of appropriate decorations. Much time was given to this work and considerable credit is given to the committee in charge.

The annual New Year's tea dance held at the Governor Clinton Hotel by the Junior Auxiliary was an outstanding social event of the holiday season.

In September the annual Charity Ball held on Easter Monday night was a decided success both socially and financially, and President Mrs. Charles O'Reilly and her efficient staff of officers were congratulated on the marvelous results achieved with the final net receipts of $2,236.72.

During the year many card parties were held from which a goodly sum was netted for the treasury.

Following the annual report of Mrs. Walter Miller, conducted by Mrs. Joseph Garland, to the chair, and Mrs. Hilary presented her with the gavel. Other officers elected for the year were:

Mrs. Moore, on behalf of the members of the Auxiliary, presented Mrs. Hilary with a large corsage of pink sweet peas in recognition of her presiding in the absence of Mrs. O'Reilly.

In her remarks to the Auxiliary members and friends, Sister Bernice said:

"The vital needs of the volunteer hospital everywhere today have urged a great army of active and interested women to enroll or become affiliated with women's auxiliaries of the hospital field. All are volunteer workers co-operating in unity and harmony for the betterment of humanity."

So we too are gathered here today to review the activities of our ladies' auxiliary for the past year under the able and enthusiastic leadership of our president, Mrs. Charles O'Reilly. We sincerely regret the absence of our president today who on account of illness is unable to be with us.

Early in the year Mrs. O'Reilly planned to leave intact the principal of the Sister Aloysia fund for the scholarship that is given each year to the student nurse having the highest scholastic average. A series of card parties therefore was planned in order to secure the auxiliaries' share of the fund. The first and largest of these card parties was given by Mrs. O'Reilly in her own residence, others followed in order. The meetings of the auxiliary during the year were well attended.

by the auxiliary added much to the holiday atmosphere. It was truly a beautiful scene for the rendering of the lovely carols which echoed through the corridors on Christmas morning bringing hope and cheer to our many patients.

Each year our annual tea is anticipated with much pleasure by members of the auxiliary. This year its setting and program have been arranged by Mrs. Francis O'Connor and Mrs. John N. Cordis, Jr. Both have left nothing undone to make it as enjoyable as in previous years.

The sewing committee has furnished us with many articles during the past year. This is a useful contribution and one that is needed constantly.

The purchasing and publicity committees have served well. We appreciate the continued interest of our Rosendahl members. The sewing they have accomplished and the willingness with which they assist at our ball each year are both worthy of much praise.

The successful achievements of our president, Mrs. Charles O'Reilly, and her predecessors, together with the splendid record of loyalty and cooperation of the auxiliary members should be a great incentive to our newly elected president, Mrs. Joseph Garland. Mrs. Garland is no stranger in our midst, having been an active member of our social activity committee a few years ago. Besides having had charge of one of our hospital day affairs, Mrs. Garland was also co-chairman with Mrs. Charles Keefe at a very successful outdoor card party on Lucas avenue a few years ago which netted a substantial sum for our treasury.

The Junior Auxiliary is following in the footsteps of the senior members. The results of the January tea may be seen in our newly decorated children's ward. Several ivory colored cribs have been added to the ward, and the windows, all of which give the ward a very homelike atmosphere for the little ones. The next objective of the junior auxiliary will be the purchasing of a resuscitation outfit for our nursery department. This will be a great asset inasmuch as it will aid the physician in his endeavor to save the lives of the newborn infants whose chances for life are often very meager. The junior auxiliary members are to be commended for their generous and practical contributions to the hospital. We hope that they will receive the greatest cooperation in making their coming event on January first surpass the events of the previous years.

The management of the Benedictine Hospital is truly grateful to every member of both the senior and junior auxiliaries for their loyal and generous contributions of service to our cause.

We must not close our remarks today until we pay fitting tribute to our departed friend and leader, His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes. It is for us to endeavor in our work to grasp the full meaning of the marvelous spirit of the entire organization of Catholic Charities which he has left us; it is truly a memorial to him. Like the Master the cardinal's charity was universal and his solicitude for the sick never waned. He constantly asked that good service and kindly treatment be given to the poor no matter what their race, religion or nationality. His spirit should indeed be our hope and inspiration.

Sister Bernice also told of the new changes in the hospitalization plan and answered a few questions that were asked from the floor. The committee in charge of the annual tea for 1938 were Mrs. Francis O'Connor and Mrs. John N. Cordis, Jr. It was largely attended and showed a creditable reflection and an inspiration for the newly elected president, Mrs. Joseph Garland, and her official staff for the year.

The delightful musical numbers played by Purcell's orchestra during the tea hour and the two vocal selections, "Star Eyes" by Oley Speaks, and "Such a Little Fellow" by Edmond, by Mrs. Bernard Foster, were greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Foster was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. R. Gross.

Those presiding at the tea table were Mrs. J. N. Cordis, Jr., Mrs. James R. Higley, Mrs. Charles Mullen and Miss Emily Rice. Members of the Junior Auxiliary assisted in the serving of refreshments under the direction of the chairman of the group, Miss Elizabeth Egan. They were the Misses Betty Dittmar, Joan Weber, Leola Saddlemyre, Marjorie McNelis, Helen Martin, Virginia Higgins and Ann Netter.

Ulster Dramatists To Repeat Play; Cast Is Praised

The hodge podge of life particularly in its relation to art and the work-a-day world was effectively portrayed in Philip Barry's "You And I" given by the Ulster County Theatre Association at the high school auditorium last night. The performance will be repeated this evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Action of the play was carried through mostly by dialogue and the half-restrained emotions of an intelligent and cultured family. The cast as a whole performed well with the work of William Fitch, Peter Minasian and Isabel Byrne, perhaps the most outstanding.

The career urge and conflicting forces of love represented the major plot interest while fate with its timely circumstances played a major part. Maillard White, played by William Fitch, is a successful business man unable to rid himself of the desire to express his deeper emotions in art. His son, Roderick has a similar problem and the family together takes a look at life. Nancy White, the dutiful and sensible wife and mother, played by Marion Byrne represents the element of decision and is largely responsible for the final happy solution of all family difficulties. Roderick, the son, finds himself faced with the time-tried problem of deciding between love and a career. His father says "career," but the mother, who in her earlier days held out for love, retains the same outlook on life and Roderick decides to marry Veronica Duane, played by Marion Farrell.

G. T. Warren, played by Peter Minasian, a friend of the family, is the good Samaritan from the business world and offers the son a job. Things get on as planned only briefly however, for Mrs. White senses the growing restlessness of her husband and decides it will be art or nothing.

Roderick's girl friend later perceives a similar career tendency in her young lover, who has a marked talent for architecture and decides his future happiness rests with his career. In the meantime, Etta, the maid proves to be Mr. White's inspirational model and a picture is born. From here on life again takes on new complications in the family, but the faithful and understanding wife carries through to save the day.

Jack Vanoy, negro of this city, who for some time conducted the Vanoy Hotel on Canal street, now closed, is in the Kingston Hospital under the care of Dr. H. A. Wilson for treatment of injuries to his left eye received Wednesday evening.

Mr. Vanoy lost the sight of his right eye a number of years ago. According to information gathered by the police Mr. Vanoy was attempting to part two fist fighters on West Strand when he received a blow intended for one of the fighters. The fighter wore a ring on one of his fingers and it was the ringed finger that caused the eye injury.

Riccardi House Burns to Ground Early Last Night

The residence of John Riccardi on Albany avenue extension, opposite the Mountain View Hotel, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin shortly after 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, while the family was in Kingston attending the movies.

The Kingston fire department responded to a call for aid and owing to the distance from the nearest fire hydrant within the city limits to the fire it was necessary to send back to the fire station for additional hose. The pump from the Central Fire Station was used as well as a booster tank on another fire truck in supplying pressure to pour water on the burning house. It was after 10 o'clock before the fire was extinguished.

Neighbors broke into the burning house and removed the furnishings before the fire had gained much headway, but the fire-room bungalow was practically a total loss, the fire burning away the roof and a large portion of the south side of the house and wrecking the interior.

The fire brought out a large number of motorists and together with the fire trucks on this heavily-traveled highway caused a traffic jam, and police headquarters sent out the radio car to assist the state troopers in keeping traffic moving.

Mr. Riccardi operates the barber shop in the Governor Clinton Hotel. His wife had left the house about 6:30 o'clock and had gone to the movies with her husband. When she left the house there was no sign of a fire. The loss is covered partially by insurance.

Action on Deed Opens in Court

There was no work for the jurors in attendance at the December trial term of Supreme Court this morning when Justice Foster convened the term and all trial jurors were excused until 11 o'clock Monday morning.

An action to set aside a deed was taken up. Solomon Uhrtroff of Cherry Hill brings an action against his wife, Ida Uhrtroff, and her son, Joseph Applebaum, to set aside a deed. He claims that he entered into an agreement with his step-son whereby they were to be partners in the farm but later that he was induced to sign a deed with the understanding that he was to be "boss" so long as he lived but on his death the property was to become that of his step-son and his wife.

He claims he was not to do any work as compensation for deeding the property to them but that he has been compelled to work. His wife left him in September, 1937. A diabetic, he said his wife refused to care for his room or do his washing and he had to eat the same food as the family although she knew he could not use sugar. He claims cruel treatment also.

John A. Bonomi appears for plaintiff and Joseph Avis for the defendant.

R. G. Garraghan Named to Plan Birthday Ball

Raymond G. Garraghan has been named chairman of President Roosevelt's Birthday ball committee in Ulster county. It was announced today. Mr. Garraghan will have charge of arrangements for the annual affair which is observed nationally to observe the President's birthday, January 30, and cooperate in the drive against infantile paralysis.

Organization of 47 of New York state's 62 counties has already been completed and it is expected that the entire state will be organized within the next two weeks.

Commenting on the steady progress of the campaign in New York, Colonel D. Walker Wear, State Director of Organization, stated: "We are well in advance of previous years in enlisting the citizens of New York in the nationwide effort to conquer and stamp out the mysterious virus that is infantile paralysis. The support we are receiving is remarkable and indicates that the Empire State will have a blue ribbon organization."

Typhoon Kills 19 Persons in Islands

Manila, Dec. 8 (AP)—A terrific typhoon swept over several provinces southeast of Manila today, leaving thousands homeless, causing floods over a wide area, and disrupting communications. Meager reports listed nineteen dead.

The storm passed south of Manila, hit northern Mindoro Island and swept into the China Sea. All sectors reported heavy damage to private and public properties, and to crops.

Masbate, Romblon, Marinduque, Leyte, Samar and South Tayabas provinces also were hit hard.

Communication lines in fifteen provinces were prostrated.

Winds reached more than 75 miles an hour velocity. Eighteen dead were reported on Samar Island and one in Camarines Sur province.

The city of Legaspi reported the strongest typhoon in many years. Two dredge boats worth $100,000 were sunk in the harbor there.

Red Cross and government relief agencies quickly went into action.

Grand Jury's Work Goes on Despite Lack of Witnesses

The Ulster county grand jury has been running in hard luck so far as witnesses are concerned but despite the handicap work is progressing in a satisfactory manner.

One witness recently summoned was unable to be present because of a death in the family, later a witness notified District Attorney Cleon B. Murray that a fire in his home would prevent attendance and today a witness met with an automobile accident and was under treatment at a hospital, thus delaying his appearance.

One Killed at Funeral
Oslo, Dec. 8 (AP)—One person was killed and seven were injured today when the roof of a small building collapsed during the funeral of Queen Maud. The building, across the street from Our Savior's Church, had been used as a vantage point to watch the funeral cortege for Norway's English-born queen.

Family Bibles Will Be Shown At Woodstock

The exhibition of family Bibles and old samplers to be given at the M. E. Church hall in Woodstock, will start at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and continue until 6 o'clock. The exhibition will also be open on Sunday from 6 o'clock until 10 p. m.

Rare family Bibles in many different languages with records dating from about 1694, will be exhibited.

The Bibles are not exclusively loaned by Woodstock families, but by others in different sections of the county, so that visitors, no matter where they come from, may find their family Bible, which perhaps they did not know existed.

The samplers shown will also be very interesting. This exhibition is held under the auspices of the Woodstock Historical Society and the Dutch Reformed, Methodist and Lutheran Churches of Woodstock. The public is invited to attend the exhibition, as well as the Bible Sunday service to be held in the Methodist Church Sunday evening.

Unemployment Service Operation

Fitness for the job is the yardstick by which the state employment service selects job applicants for reference to employers who have jobs to fill, according to Manager Kenneth A. Simpson, of the Kingston office, one of 118 in the state-wide system of public job-clearing houses.

Since the first of the year when benefit payments began under the unemployment insurance law, Mr. Simpson said, thousands of unemployed workers have filed with the state employment service offices their applications for work as well as applications for unemployment insurance benefits. This has automatically brought together thousands of job applications and has created a great pool or reservoir of available men and women from which may be picked workers to fill practically any job known to modern industry, commerce and the sciences.

"When we interview an applicant after taking his application for work, we question him carefully and fully about his training, his experience and also his vocational skills. All the occupational data he gives us are carefully analyzed and classified. Cross-classifications are made on his qualifications. In this way, when we receive a job-order for a worker with particular skills, we can immediately locate the applications of workers who appear to be qualified and refer those workers to the employer for interview."

For this reason it is extremely important that every applicant not only inform the employment service of his skill and training in the occupation which he has recently practiced but also supply details as to his experience in previous occupations.

Mr. Simpson pointed out that the state employment service functions actively for employers as well as for workers—without charge to either.

"We always bear in mind two complimentary objectives," he said. "We help the unemployed to find jobs, and we help employers to find satisfactory workers with the least expenditure of effort on their part. The man in business is a busy man, as a rule. Many times he is contented by the need to fill personnel vacancies quickly with trained, experienced workers when he can ill afford the time to search for such workers if they are rare or to question hundreds of applicants about their qualifications. The state employment service offers him a sure means of getting the workers and avoiding the delay of weeding out the unqualified. The state unemployment service does the interviewing for the employer, and then refers to him only workers found qualified to fill the jobs. From a few applicants—all qualified—the employer makes his choice."

"The local office of the New York State Employment Service is a valuable agency in any community," Manager Simpson said. "It should be the first port of call for the unemployed worker and also for the employer who needs workers."

Jews to Observe Chanukkah Rite

Chanukkah, the happy eight-day festival which Jews here and throughout the world will begin to celebrate by lighting the first candle on the eve of December 18, and an additional candle for each successive night, is often known as "The Feast of Lights." Games and gifts and special foods will add to the gaiety of this winter festival.

In the Jewish calendar the holiday always falls on the 25th day of the ninth month (Kislev) to commemorate the dedication of the forces against the armies of the Syrian Antiochus Epiphanes had made the service possible.

The antics of Epiphanes which stirred resistance have a familiar aspect in this age of modern dictators. Syria happened to be a country with Hellenistic culture. Having faith in the power of armed superiority, the king decided to enforce a totalitarian pattern upon all his subjects. A royal order decreed that all people in the realm must become Greek and worship Greek gods.

Unwilling to surrender a religion and culture of their own the Jews resisted. They knew that individual liberty and democratic rights which they prized could not survive the new decree. To save what was most precious to them they gathered about the standard of the Maccabees. Victory in the struggle meant so much that the date of the rededication of the Temple was proclaimed as an annual holiday for the Jews.

This year Chanukkah (literally, "dedication") will have a special timely message for all Jews. To those who suffer, vicariously as well as actually, from religious intolerance, the lights will again forecast that struggle for freedom against great obstacles can result in victory.

Nazi Trade Spurs In South America But Uncle Sam Still Far Out In Front

By MORGAN M. BEATTY

AP Feature Service Writer

Washington — The European totalitarian theorists are seeing upon Latin America as a special field of expansion.

Especially since the coming of Hitler, in 1933, German doctrine and commercial infiltration have been developing at top speed in the Latin American states.

As a result few nations this side of the Atlantic have been entirely free of "Hitler" organizations cut to the measure of Adolf Hitler's Nazi system. Almost everywhere that such organizations have merged, violence has flared.

This explains in part the increased interest of the United States in South America. Yet it may surprise the layman how much progress the United States has made since the war toward developing its own trade and cultural relations with South America.

Speaking of violence—President Dictator Getulio Vargas of Brazil escaped assassination last March 18 after suppressing the Nazi-inspired Green Shirts who numbered more than 15,000 men. A raid on a Green Shirts' home disclosed 3,000 swastika-decorated daggers and a radio transmitter.

Nearly 100 persons were killed last September 5, in Santiago, Chile, when the brown-shirted Nazis of that country undertook a badly-timed revolt. They were crushed.

President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico has banned Mexico's Gold Shirts and exiled their leader, Nicholas Rodriguez.

In our own United States, the Gray Shirts, presumably a part of the German-American Bund, have been the center of riots in San Francisco, New York, Chicago, Syracuse, and several New Jersey cities.

German commerce, meanwhile, has quickened by leaps and bounds in the western hemisphere, especially in South America—evidently a Nazi effort to re-establish Germany's pre-war trade. By 1936, the Germans had climbed to the No. 2 commercial position in Latin America, displacing the British empire.

New Auxiliary Head Church Music Heard At Musical Society

The December meeting of the Kingston Musical Society was held at the home of Mrs. Clyde Wonders on Limestone street last evening. During the business session, announcement was made of the change in place of the January 4 meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Le Lever in Richmond Park, instead of at the home of Mrs. Bertrand B. Bishop as scheduled. Announcement also was made of a special broadcast in December 23 over the major networks of choral music from a store in New York City.

Mrs. William Macgregor Mills also reported on the meeting of the Board of Directors of the State Federation of Music Clubs which she attended last Friday.

The topic for the evening consideration was Contemporary American Church Music, and was under the direction of Mrs. Raymond Rignall and Mrs. Harold Dedrick. Mrs. Rignall, in her prefacing remarks, said that the role of religious music is to awaken faith and to stimulate worship, but it is often debased into a pleasant distraction.

The quality of church music has been inversely in proportion to the morals of the peoples of the time, she pointed out, and said that when the people were living in a happy life the church music had been serious and when the people were living more noble lives, the church music became more flippant.

As an example of the affect of the times on the music, Mrs. Rignall used the revival and camp meetings which followed the Civil War and which brought a wave of cheap emotional music. The greatest exponent of this time was Billy Sunday and the result was a terrible effect on the musical tastes of the people in the churches. The greatest religious music has been impersonal, she said, speaking of children's music in the churches, she said that it is better than it was some 30 years ago. In her discussion of the decline of church music, Mrs. Rignall excluded the music used in the Protestant Episcopal Churches and the Roman Catholic Churches, which have clung to their early plain song traditions.

Mrs. Rignall then outlined the factors involved in church music. They are the organ, the instrument and its player, the hymnal and its words, the minister, music for the choir, the choir director, the choir, which is usually a quartet or a group of male voices, or a volunteer mixed choir, and lastly the congregation. In speaking of the organ, she reviewed the difficult requirements for a fellow of the American Guild of Organists which does a great deal to improve the caliber of the organist in the churches today.

Tendencies in church music today are that the language used in the children's hymns is gradually being put on a level with the public school friends, piano and chants are being revised, the modern composers are imitating ballads, more complicated harmonies are being used, and the texts more folk tunes are being used and there is a great deal of a capella singing. The discussion closed with the mention of a group of outstanding choirs, choir schools and composers of today.

The program given to illustrate the topic was as follows: "Sacred Music for the Child" presented by a group of seven members of the Junior Church of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church, under the direction of Mrs. Rignall, who sang, "Morning Greeting," "God's House," "Lord When There is Not Any Light," "O Lowly Sinner," a Christmas song set to the music of Brahms, "Little Duet," "Hymn of Praise," "Who Has Given Earth Its Brightness" and "Morning Hymn."

The group was dressed in its choir robes. Singing were Verna Franz, Kathryn Stewart, Christine Strub, Virginia Mae Carle, Collette Magnette, Amy Lou Millonig and Gloria Kuf. Other numbers on the program were "When I Behold," by Downing, "Open Our Eyes" by MacFarlane, "We Saw Him Sleeping" by Kennedy, and "Hear My Prayer," by James, sung by a mixed quartet, a solo "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked," by O'Hara, by Mrs. William Macgregor Mills, and two numbers by a women's group, "The Lord's Prayer" by Forsyth, and "The Christmas Story" by Worth.

Singing in the quartet were Mrs. Harold Dedrick, Miss Eva Clinton, Leonard Stine and John McCullough. They were accompanied by Mrs. Rignall. In the women's group were Mrs. LeRoy Wood, Miss Margaret Howe, Miss Lloyd LeLever, Mrs. John MacKinnon, Mrs. Mortimer Downer and Miss Caroline Port. Miss Helen Turner was the accompanist. Mrs. Lester Decker accompanied Mrs. Mills.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Florence W. Cumberley and Mrs. Helen Turner. The next meeting, will be December 31 when the Musical Society will present the children's opera, "The Seven Kids" at the Y. W. C. A.

Business Girls Study the Arts

The Business Girls' Club of the Y. W. C. A. departed from their year's study theme of "The Practical Side of Life" for a discussion of "The Arts," under the general chairmanship of Miss Laura Bailey.

Music was presented by Mrs. Raymond Rignall, and by Miss Emily D. B. Iovsradt and the dance by Miss Ottilia Riccobono. Miss Rignall discussed music appreciation and its importance and said that a little perseverance in trying to appreciate good music will bring great rewards. She added that modern music teachers are making the subjects more interesting than in former years. Now it is more practical. In conclusion Miss Bailey, accompanied by Mrs. William Blinck, sang a modern Christmas carol by Liza Lehman.

Miss Haysiad discussed painting, explaining that emotionally music and painting are closely linked. She mentioned what makes a good portrait, the arrangement, expression and color. The artist has to be sure to catch "the look" and remember it as it is an elusive thing. She also described landscape painting and said that here, too, the cloud and shadow changes must be "caught."

Anna Marie Hahn Dies in Ohio's Electric Chair When Pleas Fail

By E. E. EASTERLY

Columbus, O., Dec. 8 (AP)—Anna Marie Hahn, her golden hair disheveled, begged vainly—"Won't somebody please help me?"—and then was put to death in Ohio's electric chair last night as she gasped out the Lord's Prayer.

"Lead us not into temptation, but deliver . . ."

The prayer, intoned after Catholic Chaplain John A. Sullivan, was stifled as 1950 volts struck the body of the convicted slayer of 78-year-old Jacob Wagner of Cincinnati, one of four old German men she was accused of poisoning to obtain their meager savings.

A bluish wisp of smoke curled upward from the electrode on the right leg of the five-foot figure clad in blue cotton pajamas and brown silk robe. Four and a half minutes later—at 8:13½ p. m.—prison physician George W. Keil announced the death of the first woman ever placed in Ohio's electric chair.

Assisted by Women

Mrs. Hahn, a 32-year-old German born alien, was assisted into the execution chamber by her three matrons—Mrs. Rene Tipple, Mrs. Josie O'Brien and Mrs. Esther Lyle, first women ever to witness an electrocution in Ohio. "Oh, Oh-h," she moaned, and collapsed as she neared the chair. Guards quickly grabbed her and placed her, squirming, into the brown-varnished chair of death.

"No, no, no!" she implored. "Mr. Woodard, Mr. Woodard, don't do this to me."

"I'm sorry, but we have to do it, Mrs. Hahn," the warden, J. C. Woodard, said softly.

A guard held smelling salts under her nose.

"Don't do it, oh-h, please don't," she moaned. "My boy, think of my baby."

(She referred to her son, Oscar, 12, who was praying in the prison's Catholic chapel.)

"Isn't There Anybody . . .?"

"Can't anyone do something?" she asked, looking at the seated witnesses as the guards fastened her legs and arms. "Isn't there anybody who will help me?"

She shook her head in despair and said, "Nobody's going to help me."

"Father, come close," she called to Father Sullivan as the black leather mask was placed over her face.

The electrocution followed a last minute attempt by Mrs. Hahn's attorneys to stay it. Already refused by State and U. S. Supreme Courts, they appealed to U. S. District Judge Mel G. Underwood for a writ of habeas corpus, contending Mrs. Hahn's constitutional rights were denied in the trial. Judge Underwood denied the writ.

Mackay's Will Shows He Became Fatherly Again

Albion, N. Y., Dec. 8 (AP)—The will of the late Clarence H. Mackay testified anew today that the communications magnate had become reconciled to the marriage of his daughter, Ellen, to Irving Berlin, Tin Pan Alley's star graduate.

The wedding more than a decade ago startled New York society circles and led Mackay, head of the vast postal telegraph cable empire and one of the nation's most prominent Catholic laymen, to vow he would "never forgive or forget."

But his heart softened after his mother's death a few years later, and in his will filed for probate yesterday he bequeathed to Mrs. Berlin one third of his residuary estate.

The size of the estate was not made public.

Mackay, who died November 12, left his widow, the former Anna Case of the Metropolitan Opera, $50,000 in cash, $2,000,000 in securities and the furnishings of his town home.

The other two thirds of the residuary estate were divided between his other children, John Mackay and Mrs. Robert Z. Hawkins, divorced wife of New York State Supreme Court Justice Kenneth O'Brien.

In a codicil Mackay left $25,000 each to his eight grandchildren, including Mrs. Berlin's three children, and made numerous minor bequests to friends and old employees. He bequeathed a $5,000-a-year life income to Mrs. Jeanette Ludlow Case, his mother-in-law.

Although he had given millions to philanthropies, he made no provision for charities in his will.

Uncle Ab says if men and money aren't kept busy they lose interest.

Protection from dampness and from drafts are the two requirements that most poultry houses fail to meet.

New York state's estimated apple crop of 16,380,000 bushels is five per cent less than the 1933-37 average and 33 per cent less than last year's crop.

Lighting houseplants at night shows them off to better advantage and brightens the room, and makes possible the use of many more and different plants in the home.

Russia grows about 25 per cent of the entire world's production of potatoes; Germany more than 21 per cent; Poland about 15 per cent; France eight per cent; and the United States slightly more than five per cent.

Roll Up Victory No. 5 as Fleigel Stars in Shooting

Troy Wins

Sedranites Put on Good Passing Show and Defensive Classic — Brooklynalters in First and Last Periods

Kingston's Colonials fulfilled manager Barney Sedran's prediction by checking in with a victory, Wednesday night, over the Brooklynalters, 29-17, in the American Basketball League feature before a crowd of cage fans at the municipal auditorium.

It was a magnificent display of defensive work that the Green and White team put on for the customers, and also a scintillating show on passing the ball to hold possession during the moments that might have meant disaster if the enemy had gained the ball.

However, Johnny Donlon's boys had an off night, which is something to consider when recalling that many of their long shots hit the rim and rolled out of the basket, or bounded off the backboard.

Kingston's Bernie Fleigel, sharpshooting center, was the star in the point collecting role, gleaming 11 markers on five sensational fields and one free throw. Nat Frankel and Sammy Kaplan followed with eight and four respectively.

Kappen with six markers, the total of two from scrimmage and a pair of fouls, led the Brooklynites with Esposito, Synnott and Conaty next in order with four, three and three.

While Kingston was making it win No. 5, to boost its league standing from .571 to .625, Carlisle Husta's Haymakers added a victory by shelling the Wilkes-Barre Barons in Troy, 32-21. Troy jumped ahead of the Vissies in the standings last night.

Colonials Lead

Closely guarded in the first period, and unable to get in any pushups, the Vissies went scoreless from the floor until the last five minutes. Synnott, subbing for Hollerman, broke the ice by crashing through with a deuce from center. Fouls by Conaty, Nash and Kappen gave the visitors their other points for the total of five.

Frankel's side shot and one long one netted four points for the Colonials. Kramer and Kaplan helped out with a sinker and long heave and Fleigel's tally from the middle of the floor and free shot made up the 11 points scored by the Colonials.

Scoring Even

Kingston failed to add more than six points in the second frame, the same number gleaned by the Vissies. Deuces by Fleigel, Johnson and Kaplan made up the Colonial total, while Blondy Kappen came through with two fields and a foul for five of the Brooklyn club's tally and Synnott added the other marker.

It was Fleigel and Frankel who starred in the home-stretch for the Sedranites, the flashy center booming the basket with two long ones and a pushup for six markers, and Frankel tossing in a long one and a side shot. Kaplan led the other two with a double.

Kingston's passing in the last five minutes gave the fans a treat in "moving the ball."

The Colonials were weak on fouls, converting only one of nine called on Brooklyn by Referee Pat Kennedy. Kingston committed 15 miscues, seven turning into points for the Vissies.

Neglected Wonder Girl of Sports

The real 20th Century Wonder Girl isn't Helen Willis, Babe Didrikson, Eleanor Holm or even Myrna Loy. It is declared by Frank G. Menke, editor of a sports record book.

No, it's Eleanor Sears, daughter of a family of Boston blue-bloods. In a current magazine article Menke recalls some of the unexcelled achievements in sports of this all-around play girl, who was the first girl ever to wear blacks in public and who still makes news for Boston newspapers.

Menke says: She was perhaps the greatest woman polo player this country ever knew. Her horsemanship was superb. She delighted in riding the fractious and the vicious. She also won many ribbons in the horse-shoe ring.

When automobiles were almost as difficult to master as a bucking broncho, Eleanor raced anybody, anywhere—and soon ran out of competition.

She was a pioneer in flying and in motor-boat racing. She had few equals as a swimmer.

Miss Sears took up boxing, became a sharp-shooter with her left hand and could throw a right with the technique, if not the power, of Jack Dempsey.

No woman ever defeated her in a sailing race.

She was a keen golfer, and became one of the most brilliant performers in tennis.

After Miss Sears had slipped into the 40s, she took up distance walking. She walked from Providence to Boston, 47 miles, in nine hours, 53 minutes.

About a dozen years ago she became intrigued by the beach regatta, and became the first American champion of her sex.

But this only outlines the achievements of Eleanor. Menke presents plenty of other evidence that she has no equal.

Hutchinson and McLeod Ahead

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 8 (AP)—Veteran professional golfers entered the final 18 of their 36-hole medal play seniors' golf championship today, with $2,000 to be distributed among winners.

Yesterday's 18-hole round found Jock Hutchinson of Golf, Ill., and Fred McLeod of Washington, D. C., setting the pace with cards of 75—three over par.

Hutchinson, defending titleholder and competing in Class C for players from 50 to 54 years old, carded a 33 and par 36 for his 75. McLeod, who won the national open thirty years, played in Class B for players 55 to 59 years old and put together a 38 and a 37.

On their heels were Frank Bollwood of Garden City, L. I., in Class B, with a 76, and a trio with cards of 79—David Ogilvie of Augusta and John Inglis of Elmsford, N. Y., each a Class B player, and Jack Campbell of Jenkintown, Pa., of Class A for players over 60.

Frish and Bonura Are in Spotlight

New Orleans, Dec. 8 (AP)—Frankie Frish and Zeke Bonura were credited with hits today in baseball's green pastures but there was a good chance Zeke's popularity might catch him flat-footed off first base.

The two men, Frish, ex-manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Zeke, Washington's fence-flattening first-sacker, were in the cold spotlight as the annual convention of the national association of professional baseball leagues moved into its busiest day.

All the wisenheimers here said Frish had been offered the job of piloting the New Orleans Pelicans at a beautiful salary—for the minor leagues—but would have to make up his mind in a hurry.

But Mr. Zeke saw gold in the hills of Manhattan, knew that the New York Giants wanted him, couldn't do anything about it, and wished, maybe, that he wasn't so well liked in Chicago.

This was the case: The Giants want to buy Mr. Zeke from Washington because more than anything they need a first-baseman who can hit.

But Washington is in the American League, New York in the National. For the Giants to get Mr. Zeke all the other teams in the American League would have to waive claims to him.

It was understood here that all except two American teams have said "take him away" and of the two the Chicago White Sox are the only ones who matter.

Carnegie Tech Receives Trophy

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—The August V. Lambert memorial trophy, voted annually by sports writers to the outstanding eastern football team, remains within the golden triangle of the city of Pittsburgh.

Carnegie Tech's Coach Bill Kern received it for his squad at a dinner at the world's fair last night.

For two years the trophy, a massive object, was voted to Pittsburgh's Panthers. This year the Skidoo, who incidentally licked the Panthers, took over.

Deerslayers Pose With 1938 'Crop' of Venison

Freeman Photos

Last week proved successful to many Kingstonians who hold venison steak as their choice of meat. In the upper left is a 21-point buck, shot near Lanesville, and which is said to be one of the largest ever brought out of the Catskills. The five members of the party are, left to right, George Coley, Harold Baltz, Alfred Brueckert, Arthur Melchoir and Ralph Shultis.

(Upper right). This party of four found their six-point buck just outside Port Ewen. Oscar Sickler of 181 Fairview avenue, is credited with the deer, but all had to help drag it two miles back to the car. Left to right are Oscar Sickler, Doris Emberson, Chauncey Elliott and Merle Greene.

(Bottom left). Hunting in a party of three, Harold Middaugh (left), William Scott (center), and Emerson Mayes, all of Kingston, brought down a deer each while hunting in the vicinity of Panther Mountain near Shandaken. Emerson Mayes, who succeeded in getting the largest of the three deer, an eight-point, also managed to find his mark on a red fox.

Schirick Allows Smith Separation

Justice Schirick has granted a separation to Nora Smith from her husband Abram Smith, residents of the town of Shandaken, on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. Married November 25, 1919, at Pine Hill the plaintiff through her attorney Speenburgh & Speenburgh claims that the defendant struck plaintiff and at times threw water over her and otherwise treated her in a cruel and inhuman manner.

The case came before Justice Schirick on November 4 when testimony was taken. By the separation order custody of a child is given the plaintiff and the court directs that the defendant pay to the plaintiff the sum of $5 a week for the support and maintenance of the child.

The plaintiff alleged that she had been compelled to leave her home and reside with his mother, Elizabeth Smith, because her husband has failed to provide for her support since last February. It was contended that Mr. Smith, a carpenter, earns $4 to $5 a day at his trade.

One occasion testified to was an event at Big Indian when plaintiff went to get personal belongings. She claimed the defendant threatened her and told her if she called a State Trooper he would shoot her. He went to his room where he kept a gun and, according to the pleadings, Mrs. Smith and her daughter crawled out of a window and notified State Trooper Raymond Dunn. A charge of disorderly conduct was made and a five day jail sentence resulted. Plaintiff also charged her husband with excessive drinking.
